This dream began as I heard an announcement on TV that fire was sweeping in the West and it was destroying everything. Because I had members who lived West, I left immediately to warn and get them; they didn't have a TV or a phone.

When I got to the Westside, I saw fire a blaze a further distance west, which allowed me time to get the members and go. I yelled up to their third floor apartment to get their attention and they came out onto their back porch. I pointed west, they saw, and I urged them to get out quickly. While I waited I saw Firemen fighting the blaze as it crept closer and closer.

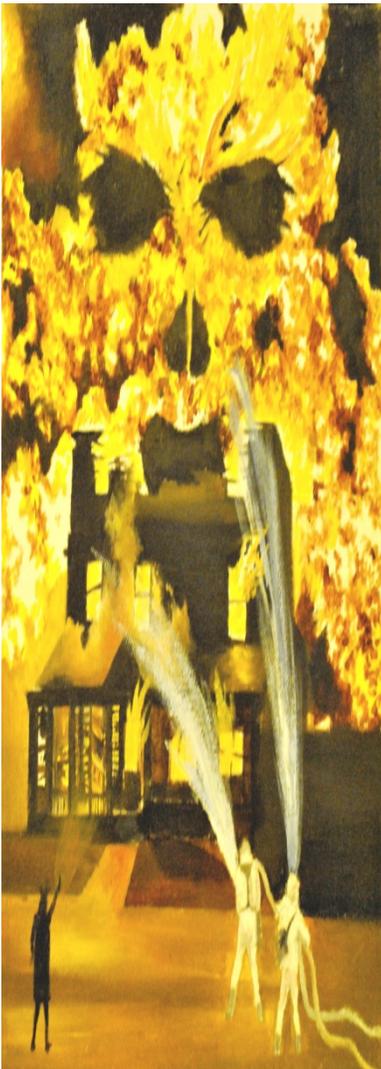

I screamed for them to hurry down. God spoke, "Do not fear. You have the power I gave you. Speak to the fire and command it!" I immediately re-grouped and I began to speak and war against the evil in the fire. I drew a spiritual line and forbade the fire to cross it. It obeyed. It got close enough to destroy us, but the line in the spirit was the line it could not cross.

We were running East, the opposite direction of the fire, when the Fire Chief came to me, acknowledge what he saw me do, and asked me to do it again in their direction so he could get his men away from the fire they could not contain.

His men had hoses down in holes. They believed the fire was coming from down under. I turned and I spoke to the fire from that side and drew another spiritual line. It obeyed but it raged angrier. We all ran. I woke up!

Instructions :

Remind the people to check their in home safety kits and refresh all non-perishable food items. Make copies of all important documents; scan them to their computers and onto a flash drive to be kept with them in a small zip lock bag. We've all done that! I remind them as often as God reminds me.

MANESFESTATION: 2011 wildfires erupted in the western states of the U.S. and destroyed countless acres of land.
